VOL. XXIX., No. 3. NEW YORK, January 16, 1886. WHOLE No. 729.

A NOVEL OF HIGH CHARACTER.

DONOVAN:

A Modern Englishman.

A NOVEL.

By EDNA LYALL.

"Donovan" is a novel that has been attracting a great deal of attention in England, especially among more serious readers. It is a religious novel, the hero of which is a freethinker, and the story consists of a struggle between doubt and faith.

FROM ENGLISH REVIEWS.

"This is a very admirable work. The story is told with a grand simplicity, an unconscious poetry of eloquence which stirs the very depths of the heart. It should do as much good as the best sermon ever written or delivered extempore."—The Standard.

"A novel of sterling merit, being fresh and original in conception, thoroughly healthy in tone, interesting in detail and sincere and capable in execution."—The Academy.

"A novel with a high aim successfully attained. The character-drawing is vigorous and truthful."—The Pall Mall Gazette.

"Donovan" is told with the power of truth, experience, and moral insight."—The Daily News.

"There is a great deal of thought in this book. The author has an unusual capacity for seeing both sides of a question."—The Spectator.

"Donovan" is distinguished by marked ability in the portraiture of exceptional forms of character. The hero himself is a finished study."—The Globe.

"Donovan" is a powerful tale, with a high purpose. The conception is altogether fine."—The Guardian.

"Donovan himself is a careful and finished study."—The Graphic.

12mo. Cloth. Price, $1.50.

D. APPLETON & CO., Publishers,

1, 3, & 5 Bond Street, New York.

Booksellers, especially those who sympathize with the work, are urged to keep these books in stock. The limited discount prevents underselling, and makes the books safe to handle, and there should be a large sale in educational institutions and among young men.

THE SOCIETY FOR POLITICAL EDUCATION.

INTENSELY INTERESTING.

Ready January 20th.

A. R. HART & CO., PUBLISHERS,

16 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

WILL PUBLISH JANUARY 16:

The History of German Literature.

By Professor William Scherer. Translated under the supervision of Professor Max Müller. 2 vols. 12mo. $3.50.

Professor Scherer's is the first history of German literature worthy to be called at the same time masterly, in a scholarly sense, and popular. It is already a recognized authority of the highest rank in its own country; and this translation, with the sponsorship of the first of Anglo-German scholars, will occupy a place among our own means of instruction which there has been nothing else to fill.

"Professor Scherer has written a history of German literature which is as full of entertainment as it is of instruction, and comprises within a convenient space all that is important to know of German literature."—Professor H. E. Boyesen.

Endless Punishment.

By Professor W. G. T. Shedd, D.D. 1 vol. 8vo. $1.50.

Dr. Shedd has performed a valuable service in writing this book, which contains a comprehensive and most able defense of the belief of the Church upon this subject. The argument for endless punishment has never been more cogently and clearly stated.

God's Revelations of Himself to Men.

As successively made in the Patriarchal, Jewish and Christian Dispensations, and in the Messianic Kingdom. By Samuel J. Andrews, author of "The Life of Our Lord Upon Earth." 1 vol. Crown 8vo. $2.50.

Dr. Andrews has written a clear and scholarly history of the different ways in which God has revealed himself to man. In showing the increasing fulness of these successive revelations, and in pointing out their relations to one another, he has followed the most interesting line of study in all historical theology.

How to be Happy Though Married.

Being a Hand-Book to Marriage. By a Graduate in the University of Matrimony. 1 vol. 12mo. $1.25.

"We strongly recommend this book as one of the best of wedding presents. It is a complete hand-book to an earthly Paradise, and its author may be regarded as the Murray of Matrimony and the Baedeker of Bliss."—Pall Mall Gazette.

NOTES IN SEASON.

WILLIAM S. GOTTSBERGER publishes to-day Count Léon Tolstoi's historical novel, "War and Peace," translated from the French by Clara Bell.

THE WORTHINGTON Co. have made arrangements with the English publishers to issue on the 25th inst. A. C. Swinburne's work on "Victor Hugo," which has been well received abroad.

A. R. HART & Co., N. Y., will publish on the 20th "Uncle Daniel's Story," by an officer of the Union Army. This story purports to give an account of Andrew Johnson's alleged "attempt to overturn the Government," and also to give an account of all the secret works of Northern conspirators—enough work, it seems to us, for one volume.

LEA BROS. & Co. have just published a sixth and revised edition of Dr. J. Lewis Smith's "Diseases of Infancy and Childhood;" Dr. James Ross's "Handbook of Nervous Diseases," and Mr. T. Pickering Pick's "Fractures and Dislocations." Dr. Ross's work enjoys the distinction of being an English work printed in America directly from the author's manuscript, the large demand for the book in England being supplied entirely from this side of the Atlantic.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish to-day Prof. Scherer's important work on "The History of German Literature," already fully noticed in the WEEKLY; a volume on "Endless Punishment," by Prof. W. G. T. Shedd, a comprehensive defence of the belief of the Church upon this subject; "God's Revelations of Himself to Men, as successively made in the Patriarchal, Jewish, and Christian Dispensation, and in the Messianic Kingdom," by S. J. Andrews; also, "How to be Happy Though Married," a volume which attracted considerable attention abroad, and which was called by the Pall Mall Gazette "a complete handbook to an earthly Paradise."

ESTES & LAURIAT will publish on the 20th inst. a limited edition, in three volumes, of "The Complete Poetical Works of Percy Bysshe Shelley." The text of this edition has been carefully revised, and has notes and a memoir by William M. Rossetti. On the same day they will publish a work on "Food Materials and their Adulterations," a short account of the early history and sources of the chief articles of food, with notes on the adulterations to which they are liable, and the means of detecting them, by Ellen H. Richards; a new edition of the same author's "The Chemistry of Cooking and Cleaning;" also "The Early Hanoverians," by Edward E. Morris, in the Epochs of Modern History.

TICKNOR & Co. have just ready "The Story of Margaret Kent," by Henry Hayes, a novel of Bohemian life in New York, "illustrating woman's inhumanity to woman" with masterly skill. The plot and situations are original and natural, sparkling with real life and tender feelings, and the novel is one of the strongest and most absorbing of recent contributions to fiction. The author's name is said to conceal a practised writer, as the capital workmanship of the book suggests. They have also just ready a new and fully-revised and much enlarged edition of "American Whist," by G. W. P., an excellent teacher and wise companion to the most enjoyable game of cards; and an original copyright translation of "Cleopatra," by Henry Gréville.

CASELL & Co. will publish next week, probably on the 20th, Macaulay's "Warren Hastings," the first of Cassell's National Library, a series of volumes to be issued weekly under the editorship of Professor Henry Morley. These volumes will represent all periods and form of thought—history, biography, religion, and philosophy; discovery and enterprise; plays, poems, and tales; natural science and natural history; art; political economy; with whatever else may be worth lasting remembrance. Professor Morley is not only responsible for the selections in the series, but he will write an introduction to each number. The first volume will be followed by Isaac Walton's "Complete Angler," Lord Byron's "Childe Harold," and the autobiography of Benjamin Franklin. Among the other books to be issued in this series are Gilbert White's "Natural History of Selborne," Martin Luther's "Table Talk," Sheridan's "The School for Scandal" and "The Rivals," Hallam's "History of Europe during the Middle Ages;" indeed, there are few classics that will not find their way into this omnivorous library. The crowning glory of this series is its remarkably low price. The volumes will be small sixteenmos of about one hundred and ninety-two pages, printed in clear, readable type on good paper, and sold for ten cents each, or fifty-two volumes, postpaid, for $5, when subscribed for by the year.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., oblong, designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Abarbanel's reader, for the use of Israelites, in schools and families. Cin., The Bloch Pub. & Print. Co., 1885. 450 p. S. cl., $1.

Æsop. A child's version of Æsop's fables; with a supplement containing fables from La Fontaine and Krilof; [arranged] by J. H. Stickney. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1886. 14+204 p. il. S. (Classics for children.) bds., 40 c.

Each fable is followed by suggestive questions, making the book a means of language culture and a partial manual of practical ethics.

Alexander, W. Lindsay, D.D. Zechariah: his visions and warnings. N. Y., N. Tibbals & Sons, 1885. 8+335 p. O. cl., $2.

The first volume yet issued of this valuable historical series, which is complete in itself, with preface and index, taking up events from the earliest records and bringing them down to the present day. The publishers are assured that this is a timely volume. There is no part of the United States domain whose climate, resources, and history are so little known as those of Alaska. There is no part more needful of the attention of statesmen and men of progress and philanthropy. It is to be believed that this volume will prove of immediate and lasting benefit in thus throwing new light on this distant region.

"After his kind" means true to the characteristics of his ancestors. Constructed on the old-fashioned dramatic plan, with prologue and epilogue. The characters are numerous, and the plot complicated and interesting. The heroines are particularly well drawn. Scene first laid on the good ship Favorite; then on an English gentleman's farm; then in Maryland. There are several excellent poems and some printed music included in the text.

- Lowe, C: Prince Bismarck: an historical biography. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1886.] 2 v. 21+639; 10+633 p. pors. O. cl., $5.

"This is the first attempt, by an English writer, to place before his countrymen a complete historical sketch of the career of the great German statesman;... they have hitherto been without a connected and elaborate account of his whole career from a purely English point of view, and these volumes are intended to supply this much-felt want. Aiming as they do at recording in as complete a manner as possible the personal achievements of the greatest man of the age, they at the same time claim to be regarded as a political history of modern Germany...." — Preface. The first volume brings the history of Bismarck's life down to the close of the Franco-German war. The second covers the period from 1871 to 1885. An appendix gives the text of treaties of Vienna (1864), of Prague (1866), of Frankfurt (1871), and the convention of Gastein (1865); also the Prussian and liberal constitutions, with portraits of the prince at 19 and at 73. Index. Mr. Charles Lowe used to be the Berlin correspondent of the London Times.

- Lowndes, Cecilia Selby. The two violets. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1885. 119 p. il. S. cl., 45 c.

- Lyall, Edna. Donovan: a modern Englishman: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1886. 6+456 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The hero is introduced at eighteen, in disgrace and expelled from school. His father's kindness touches his better nature, and influences him to improve. The father's sudden death brings about many changes, and Donovan falls into the temptation of gambling, sporting, and idleness, and also becomes a confirmed atheist. The author shows great skill in presenting both sides of a picture. The influence of a happy home and the great power of good women are strongly brought out. The plot is interesting, the style simple and poetic. There is a touch of Dickens in the portraiture of "Dot," Donovan's invalid child-sister.

- Norman, H: ed. The broken shaft: tales in mid-ocean. N. Y., Appleton, 1886. 223 p. D. pap., 25 c.

The breaking of the shaft of a Cunarder in mid-ocean is the occasion of some of the passengers telling the stories embraced in this little volume, to pass the time away. The editor furnishes the narrative which connects them together. "The upper berth" is told by F. Marion Crawford; "Markheim," by Rob. L. Stevenson; "Marjory," by F. Anstey; "The action to the word," by Walter Hernes Pollock; "My fascinating friend," by W: Archer; "Riley, M. P.," by Tighe Hopkins, and "Love and lightning," by the editor.

Rame, Louise de la, ["Ouida," pseud.] Othmar: a novel. N. Y., G: Munro, [1885.] 3-480 p. S. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 639.) pap., 20 c.

Ricker, N. Clifford. Elementary graphic statics and the construction of trussed roofs: a manual of theory and practice. N. Y., W: T. Comstock, 1885. 158 p. il. and tables, O. cl., $2.

A portion of this work appeared in the form of a series of articles on the construction of roofs, published in Building. These articles have been carefully revised and greatly extended by the addition of such matter as appeared necessary to make the work more suitable as a manual for instruction, for private study, or for reference. It now essentially represents the course of study in graphic statics, with special application to trussed roofs, pursued by the students in the school of architecture of the University of Illinois (in which the author is professor of architecture) for several years past, after a trial of the more favorably known text-books treating this subject.

Saintsbury, G: Marlborough. N. Y., Appleton, 1886. 2+219 p. S. (English worthies, ed. by Andrew Lang.) cl., 75 c.

The second volume in this new biographical series. Living from 1650 until 1722, John Churchill, Lord Marlborough, was one of the most important figures of his day. History and romance have furnished volumes of which he was hero. Mr. Saintsbury gives the main facts of Marlborough's life, stated, it is believed, impartially from the best authorities, and certainly commented on without the least determination to make the man a fiend or an angel. Against his character the worst that can be said has been said in Thackeray's "Henry Esmond" and Macaulay's "History of England." A good subject index and a "biographical note" referring to authorities quoted, add to the value of the volume.

Scott, Sir Walter. The talisman; ed. by Dwight Holbrook. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1886. 12+453 p. S. (Classics for children.) bds., 60 c.

The original text is given unabridged; definitions are placed at the end of the page, and explanatory notes about persons, events, and customs at the end of the book.

Stevenson, Rob. L: Strange case of Dr. Jekyll and M. Hyde. Authorized ed. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1886. 5+138 p. D. cl., $1.

A thrilling story, based upon a conceit so weird and original that the interest would be spoiled by any description. Quite out of the line of the "New Arabian nights" and Mr. Stevenson's charming books of travel.

Temple, G: Britta: a Shetland romance. N. Y., G: Munro, [1885.] 3-136 p. S. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 642.) pap., 10 c.

Wellington, Mrs. A. A. By a way that they knew not. Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1885. 288 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The scene is laid in Chicago; the heroine is a fashionable belle of that city; after following her gay career and its attending disappointments, which are the indirect cause of her acknowledging her error, there are two pretty little romances, which conclude a story that is pervaded with a deep religious sentiment.

What's his offence? a novel. N. Y., G: Munro, [1885.] 3-341 p. S. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 637.) pap., 20 c.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 16, 1886.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries" thankfully received.

THE QUESTION OF DISCOUNTS.

THERE are two important improvements which would do much to give to the book trade that basis of business certainty on which other trades are based, and which, sooner or later, are sure to come. One of these is international copyright; the other is a reform in the system of discounts. When the American Book Trade Association held its meeting at Philadelphia in 1876, which adopted the restriction of discounts afterward known as the twenty per cent rule, (though it was intended to maintain retail prices and to restrict the stated discount to certain privileged classes,) it was urged upon the convention that such a movement would be futile unless it were accompanied by a reduction in retail prices, and a shortening of the nominal wholesale discounts to their actual rate. In any movement of this sort, especially if it is spread over a large body of men, one fact must first of all be recognized, that the laws of general business and public opinion are the main arbiters beyond all possibility of control by any smaller interest. If the trade at that time had been willing to take the far-sighted view of putting itself in line with public opinion instead of more or less in opposition to it, we should have seen a far better condition to-day of both the retail and the wholesale book trade, and the public would have been also so much the better off.

We make bold to repeat now, although we shall meet at once the protest that the bookseller cannot live on less margin than he has to-day, that the one move, aside from international copyright, which will do most to put the trade on a good footing, especially in their contest with the "bazaars" and "butchers," is to bring down nominal retail prices by shortening trade discounts from their present nominal accounts to what they really are. This reform was brought about some time since in the law-book trade by the boldness of one house—Messrs. Little,

Brown & Co.—who took the initiative in reducing the nominal price of $7.50 books to $6, leaving the actual trade rate, which had been $4.50, the same. It seems to be the general opinion of the law-book trade that this has worked thoroughly well; it is no longer possible to tell the old story of the judge who was charged $7.50 for a given book by a certain dealer, and who presently found a copy of the same book in the hands of his clerk, who bought fewer books but bought "sharper," for which he had paid only $6. The same move has been made on certain lines of books by two or three houses in the regular trade, and they express themselves as fairly satisfied with the result. If one or two of the larger houses would deliberately and fully adopt this policy, keeping wholesale prices practically the same as now, but reducing nominal retail prices to the price at which the great body of the actual edition is actually sold at retail, nobody would be the loser, the apparent increase of cheapness would help the wider sale of the book, and there would be no such margin as there is now between "the publisher's prices" and "our prices" in the advertisements of the bazaars, nor would leading houses in the regular trade be compelled to advertise that they sell books "as low as any dry-goods store."

We say this in the full knowledge that the present margin in bookselling to the retailer is not more than enough to enable him to take the risk and pay the cost of keeping in stock a good line of books such as the frequenter of a true bookstore needs to see in making his selections. What we are saying is not that the real margin should be reduced, but that this fictitious price, which throws so much of the general buying into the hands of "bazaars" and "butchers," should be got rid of once for all. The policy of restriction of prices, as we have for many years said, is almost, if not quite, unworkable, because the public at once take it to be against public policy. We feel convinced that it is only a question of a few more years when this reform must come about, and we believe the sooner it comes the better for the whole trade. We shall be very glad to have the views of publishers and retailers on this branch of the general question the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is now discussing, whether they agree or do not agree with this opinion.

THE THREE-VOLUME NOVEL DOOMED.—It is pretty certain that the three-volume novel is doomed. The great popularity of the one-volume novel—in which we have followed the example of America—be it sold for one shilling or six—combined with the great movement now being made in favor of cheap literature—that is, really standard works, admirably printed, would appear to point to the eventual downfall of the circulating libraries.—London Correspondence of the Book-buyer.

TRIBUTE TO J. B. LIPPINCOTT.

ON the 7th inst., the day on which the body of the late J. B. Lippincott was borne from his residence, No. 204 W. Rittenhouse Square, to its last resting-place at Laurel Hill, a meeting of the book trade of Philadelphia was held at the office of Mr. E. H. Butler, 17 S. 6th Street, to take appropriate action relative to the death of their deceased confrère. The meeting was the largest the book trade of Philadelphia has held for many years.

There were present: Thomas MacKellar, of MacKellar, Smiths & Jordan, the type founders; Henry C. Lea; Charles G. Sower, of Sower, Potts & Co.; Mr. Carey, of Carey Bros. & Grevemeyer; George H. Eldredge, of Eldredge & Bro.; F. W. McDowell, of the Jessup & Moore Paper Company; Edgar H. Butler, of E. H. Butler & Co.; J. H. Butler; Francis Wells, of the Evening Bulletin; Henry Carey Baird; A. J. Holman and J. Nathaniel Holman, of A. J. Holman & Co.; John C. Copper; Charles J. Cohen; Frank Murphy, of William F. Murphy's Sons; Robert Porter and Henry T. Coates, of Porter & Coates; Mr. Johnston, of the American Sunday-School Union; John A. Black, of the Presbyterian Board of Publication; Christian C. Febiger, of Henry C. Lea's Son & Co.; Mr. Blakiston, of P. Blakiston, Son & Co.; Joseph B. Cowperthwait, of Cowperthwait & Co.; William Rutter, of William Rutter & Co.; Roger Sherman, of Sherman & Co.; J. L. and Owen Shoemaker, of J. L. Shoemaker & Co.; Harry De Silver, of Charles De Silver & Sons; George Thomson, of Westcott & Thomson; A. G. Elliot, of A. G. Elliot & Co.; T. B. Peterson; and B. M. Gaskill, of Gaskill & Crouse.

Mr. Henry Carey Lea was called to the chair, and Mr. E. H. Butler, who called the meeting, acted as secretary. Mr. Lea said that forty-one years ago he knew Mr. Lippincott when he first started in business on the corner of Fourth and Race streets, under the name of Lippincott & Clark. Beginning at that time he knew Mr. Lippincott, and was a constant and intimate friend of his. During the whole intimacy he had never had an unpleasant word with him. To use Mr. Lea's words: "I remember when the bookselling community was so startled by the announcement which he made, stating that he had bought out the firm of Grigg & Elliott, at that time the largest bookselling house in this city, and it was well calculated to excite considerable commotion, for Mr. Lippincott was not known to be the possessor of the means to accomplish this transaction with. He was most industrious and most energetic. From that time forward everything that went on in his store had his personal supervision, from the packing and unpacking of boxes to the contracts and investments of the firm. In 1861 and 1862 he erected the large store and warehouse on Market Street, where he has ever since carried on his enterprises so successfully. I watched from the start his energetic development with a feeling of civic pride. The growth and magnitude of the concern gained day by day and year after year. To watch his individual development was what interested me most. With what pluck he would face the several vicissitudes which he met! I remember of one instance. During the panic of 1857 he was most desirous of keeping together his interest and trade in the South and his large jobbing trade in this city. He happened to come across a photograph album in New York one day, which he forthwith brought on to this city, and in a short time he was coining money by its reproduction. Then again in 1861, when the Rebellion broke out, if I am not misinformed, the amount of indebtedness of his firm was between $300,000 and $400,000, all of which Mr. Lippincott advanced from his own pocket. Many a firm would have failed. He was proud of the great work he had accomplished. In spite of all this indebtedness, he bought at that time the property on which the present store now stands. Not only was it a great improvement to him, but to the city. When this firm changed suddenly a short time ago, Mr. Lippincott obtained new partners, and started immediately to renew his jobbing trade through not only the United States, but abroad. In the death of so valuable a man the book trade of the United States will greatly feel a great loss, and I earnestly hope that those whom he leaves behind him will be able to manage and look after the great interests he originated and developed."

Mr. Henry T. Coates then offered the following resolution, or minute, for adoption:

"In the death of Joshua B. Lippincott Philadelphia mourns the loss of one of her best-known and most active citizens, and the book trade her foremost and ablest member, to whose energy, decision of character, and foresight is due the building up of the great house which has aided in making Philadelphia known and respected, not only in this country, but also over the whole civilized world.

"As a business man he laid the foundations of the house which bears his name upon the broad principles of commercial honor and personal integrity, and did much to make the name of a Philadelphia merchant respected and trusted.

"As a citizen he was enterprising and public-spirited, and as a wise and safe counsellor he did much to promote many of the great enterprises in which our city is so deeply interested.

"Straightforward in all his dealings, frank and courteous in his manner to all, he ever held to the high principle that a merchant's word should be as good as his bond, his name will be one of the memories of the book-trade of Philadelphia and the great house which he founded, and which bears his name, his lasting monument."

This was unanimously adopted, as well as a resolution to close the stores from twelve to one o'clock, the time of the funeral.

After remarks by Messrs. A. J. Holman, Henry Carey Baird, and John Copper, who all spoke of the many excellent qualities of the deceased, Mr. Thomas MacKellar addressed the meeting as follows:

"Mr. Chairman, all has been well said that can be said concerning the skill, enterprise, and remarkable business character of Mr. Lippincott; and as the tenor of the remarks of yourself and of the other gentlemen who have spoken has been largely personal and reminiscent, I may properly continue in a similar line in regard to my recollections of the book trade of Philadelphia (though my connection with it is but as a finger of the body), which reach back to 1833; my always friendly relations with Mr. Lippincott began too long ago for dating. And now, as I look along the line of memorial stones that mark the departure of so many of the brotherhood who had a hand in the making and publishing of books, I see far away at the utmost end, yet very distinctly, the monolith of Mathew Carey, the aged man so genial and benevolent in the years when I knew him, and so enterprising in his business prime, when, before the era of stereotyping and of machine presses, he had the entire Bible set up in movable types, which were kept locked up in cases ready at all times for use when a new edition was needed. The last volume published by him was a work from his own hand, and stereotyped under my supervision; and as its subject as well as title was the "Promotion of Domestic Happiness," it was a fitting crown-piece of his useful life. Unmindful of chronological sequence, I shall now wander at random among memories of the departed in other years; and before me rises one who fell early, Edward L. Carey, who, with Abraham Hart, succeeded Mathew Carey; energetic and impulsive in time of health, his moral and mental character gained in beauty as the physical nature weakened. A lover of the fine arts, and surrounded in his seclusion by things beautiful, he relieved his invalid hours by planning elegant editions; and in this work he was seconded by his partner, who was a man of a bright, honest, friendly eye and a warm heart, and whose exemplary character and good deeds attested the excellent principles that controlled his life. Next I see Henry C. Carey, known world-wide as the philosopher and political economist; but, like other authors of Philadelphia, more honored abroad than at home; and in this connection I venture to place our present learned chairman, Mr. Henry C. Lea, of the old publishing house of Blanchard & Lea, whose admirable works posterity will take care of. Then I warmly recall the witty, cheerful, and enterprising E. H. Butler, who, with all his sprightliness, had an eye that could see far off. How many a friendly chat was held with him in riding homeward to Germantown after business hours! And there was cheery William McCarty, brimful of hearty good nature; and there was his opposite, Uriah Hunt, the tall, serene, and every way worthy and admirable Quaker publisher of county and other school books and useful works. And with him I recall Thomas Kimber in the same line as his brother-Friend, Uriah Hunt. Ah! here is John Grigg, who, with Elliott, has left a memory to be proud of as a great leader among the book-craft, far-sighted and sagacious, and who laid the foundation on which Mr. Lippincott erected his superb structure. And here comes Adam Waldie, whose periodical publications were noteworthy events of the day—the forerunners of a multitude; and near him I see Eliakim Littell, the man of cultivated mind, whose Museum in its ability and multitude of volumes is now represented by the Living Age of Boston.

"Turning my eye to the printers' section, there looms up that sterling man, Isaac Ashmead, the grand old Presbyterian elder, whose happy and cheerful face was a picture to see, and who made his enduring mark as a successful printer. With him comes the able, bluff, hearty Conger Sherman, whose ringing laugh still reverberates pleasantly in the halls of memory. Very near I behold my old friend and partner, Lawrence Johnson, than whom an abler or more energetic man the annals of our trade cannot furnish, whose business nature had a razor-edge that cut keenly yet honestly, and whose social nature was benevolent and friendly. In close companionship with him is John Fagan, a scholarly, well-read man, gentle and silver-tongued, yet of excellent business capacity. Then there were the two brothers Collins, printers of enterprise and vim—the elder cheerful as sunshine, the other somewhat brusque. And there is that gentleman of gentlemen, with sweet tones and pleasant words, John C. Clark, printer and publisher, who lived for earth's adornment and blessing ninety-five years. A while before his going away to the better lands I called upon him, and found him, though nearly blind, bright, winsome, and cheerful as in his prime. And there is the earnest, driving John McLoughlin; the excellent Stavely, and even-minded Kite, and the persuasive Jasper Harding, of the Inquirer; and the venerable Joseph R. Chandler, of the United States Gazette; the persevering Swain, of the Ledger; the analytic Jarvis, and the finance-wise Sailer; the many-sided Morton McMichael, of the North American, sheriff, mayor, and editor; and the versatile John W. Forney, of the Press—yes, and there is my special favorite—a man of few years but much merit—Joseph C. Neal, of Neal's Gazette, whose humor was clean and mirth-provoking, and whose nature was as gentle as a woman's.

"I look around and see among the legal men the Johnsons and Kay and Small; and then I linger before the excellent, slow-spoken, but weighty-worded Charles Megargee, the keen Sylvester Megargee, the gentlemanly Jessup, and the recondite, clear-headed Bloomfield H. Moore. Ah me! these and others of the book trade have all passed away within the knowledge of living man; and we to-day assemble to commemorate the last called, the ambitious printer and publisher, Joshua B. Lippincott, now reposing in the majestic stillness of death. Yes, there is a majesty in the dead that is wonderfully impressive, and that speaks to us with emphatic distinctness; and it is a dull ear that does not hear, 'Remember that thou, too, art mortal.' Let us heed the voice, and imitate the virtues, and be instructed by the failings of the departed, and do our part well. Edmund Burke exclaimed, 'What shadows we are, and what shadows we pursue!' Let us not be quick in assenting to this hasty, despondent cry. Let our lives respond rather to the lofty sentiment of Coleridge, slightly modified:

"He liveth best that loveth best
All things both great and small,
For the dear God who loveth us,
He made and loveth all."

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

AN OBJECTION TO THE HAWLEY BILL.

From the Beacon, Jan. 9.

CONGRESS will again be asked to pave the way for an international copyright by providing that "the citizens of foreign states and countries of which the laws, treaties, or conventions confer, or shall hereafter confer, upon citizens of the United States rights of copyright equal to those accorded to their own citizens, shall have in the United States rights of copyright equal to those enjoyed by citizens of the United States." This is not a good bill. An American citizen cannot in the nature of things have English rights, and an Englishman cannot have American rights. Nor can such rights be conferred by treaty. But the rights of an American author can be protected in England, and the rights of an English author can be protected in America. So can the rights of publishers, paper-makers, and compositors. The thing to protect in this case is the manufactured article. Prohibit illegal and illegitimate reprints, but protect the home-made article, and do not expose the American market to the ravages of the British publisher. Let the English author have ample rights in the United States, but do not try to place English publications on a par with our own. In order to secure his copyright, the American author must produce his book, printed and published in the United States. Why should an English author do less? Let foreign publishers sell as many books in the United States as they please. They may sell books precisely as other manufacturers sell cotton goods and silk stuffs. But a monopoly of selling a particular article—and copyright confers a monopoly—is not to be thought of, unless the article is manufactured in the country where it is offered for sale. For this reason, there should be added to the bill a clause like this: "Provided the citizens of such foreign states and countries have caused their books or other publications, for which they seek copyright, to be manufactured in the United States." Short of such a clause all protection of publications is a physical impossibility. The law cannot protect ideas. It protects contrivances, including books duly copyrighted. And the rights of publishers are quite as important as are those of authors. It is our business, as a nation, to protect our authors, publishers, paper-makers, compositors, type-makers, and binders. It is not our business to protect those who live under a foreign government, and merely seek to sell their merchandise in the American market.

AN ENGLISH BOOKSELLER OF THE LAST CENTURY.

CHARLES WELSH, of the firm of Griffith, Farran, Okeden & Welsh, London, has just published a most interesting memoir of John Newbery,* the founder of their house, which claims exceptional attention from all those who are actively engaged in the dissemination of literature, as well as to students of eighteenth century life.

The story of John Newbery, according to the London Publishers' Circular, "does not exclusively belong to 'the trade,' for he was more closely identified with England's actual literature than any other bookseller of the century, except Richardson. As Goldsmith's 'philanthropic publisher of St. Paul's Churchyard,' and as the friend of Johnson, Newbery's place in the history of an interesting epoch in English literature is unique. His memory has also a special elevation in public esteem through his having been the founder of that productive department of publishing known as 'juvenile literature,' in which his successors of to-day, Messrs. Griffith, Farran & Co., prove themselves so true to the traditions of the old house. . . .

"It appears that an ancestor of John Newbery was a considerable publisher at the close of the sixteenth century, his publications including 'Hakluyt's Voyages' and 'Holinshed's Chronicles.' John, however, was the son of a farmer, and was born at Waltham, St. Lawrence, Berks, in the year 1713. His business connections, as is well known, included other enterprises besides books, notably tea and patent medicines. . . .

"It is curious to notice the effective way in which Newbery advertised his books; in fact, his notices in that department, although somewhat more learned, have the same flavor as similar announcements of the present day. Here is an example:

"According to Act of Parliament (neatly bound and gilt), a 'Little Pretty Pocket-Book,' intended for the instruction and amusement of little Master Tommy and pretty Miss Polly; with an agreeable letter to each from 'Jack the Giant-killer;' as also a 'Ball and Pincushion,' the use of which will infallibly make Tommy a good boy and Polly a good girl. To the whole is prefixed a letter on education humbly addressed to all parents, guardians, governesses, etc., wherein rules are laid down for making their children strong, healthy, virtuous, wise, and happy.

"Children, like tender ozers, take the bow,
And as they first are fashioned, always grow."
—DRYDEN.

"Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined,
'Tis education forms the vulgar mind."—POPE.

"Printed for J. Newbery at the Bible and Crown, near Devereux Court, without Temple Bar.

"Price of the Book, 6d.; with a Ball and Pincushion, 8d."

It is also curious to notice the phases through which the well-known business in St. Paul's Churchyard has passed. 'On John Newbery's death it was continued by his son, Francis Newbery, his nephew, Francis Newbery, and his stepson, Thomas Carnan. Most of Oliver Goldsmith's writings were published by John Newbery, who also issued the works of Dr. Johnson, Christopher Smart, Dr. Dodd, and many other celebrated writers. The old house was also a renowned medicine and tea warehouse. Dr. James's fever powders, and numerous patent medicines, were for years sold there. Cephalic snuff, Analeptic pills, and tea at thirty shillings a pound, were also among the commodities to be bought at the establishment a hundred years ago. After the Newberys, John Harris succeeded to the business. It subsequently became Grant & Griffith, later on Griffith & Farran, and two years ago the present style [Griffith, Farran, Okeden & Welsh] was adopted."

CHICAGO AS A LITERARY CENTRE.—Chicago has two book-stores which are among the best and largest in the world. It has a publishing house which has issued during the past three years books by the million, [sic]. Its issues of standard authors in cheap but attractive form have been something enormous. And the sale of these speaks well for the literary taste of Western readers. The class of books drawn from the Public Library is constantly improving. The city is full of literary and scientific clubs of one sort and another, whose activities—if reported as other things are in the papers—would be a revelation to many. The Chicago Literary Club, the Fortnightly, and similar organizations include gentlemen and ladies of the highest culture, and whose spoken thoughts, in one form and another, are a power not in the city only, but through the land. Not a few of the papers first read in these circles have been published at the East in the leading magazines and reviews, and commanded uncommon attention.—Inter-Ocean.

REPLIES TO "SOME PERTINENT QUESTIONS."

LOUISVILLE, KY., Jan. 7, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: The question, "Is the book business changing permanently?" discussed in the WEEKLY for January 2, is of vital importance to booksellers throughout the country, and should receive their immediate consideration.
That it is changing is a fact which must be conceded by the most conservative members of the trade; that these changes have been and are to the decided disadvantage of the regular bookseller is a fact equally indisputable; and that these changes must necessarily become permanent—unless some decided reform is instituted in the method of doing business both by publishers and booksellers—is another fact evident to every bookseller who has had either "butcher" or "bazaar" to contend with. It is a mistake to suppose that the bookseller is alone responsible for the present demoralized condition of affairs in the book-market. It is our opinion that much of the evil now existing is traceable to the publishers themselves. It is not the inactivity of the bookseller as much as the activity of the publisher that has furthered the interests of the "bazaar." Publishers eager to "work off" their publications place them in the "bazaars" with as little hesitancy as they do in the regular book store. We believe it to be a fact that certain publishers of repute in the East send their representatives on the road with instructions to job to the "butcher" and "bazaar" upon the same terms as to the regular bookseller. It would be the worst kind of injustice to include all publishers in this category; there are some who refuse to carry on business—under any conditions—with any of the "bazaars," and who do all in their power to protect the interests of the legitimate book trade. They are in turn more than doubly repaid by the interest taken in their publications by the bookseller and by the earnestness with which he pushes them. Is it possible that publishers are blind to the fact that they are damaging their own interests among the regular trade by promoting the interests of the "bazaar"? The so-called "bazaar" caters to a class of trade who in almost every case seek cheap books. They are for the most part unable to distinguish between a well-made and a poorly-made book, and are as well satisfied with one printed in pearl as one in long primer. This trade should and could be handled by the regular bookseller. One thing only is necessary; he must be metropolitan in the selection of his stock, must buy both good and poor editions of the same book, and must bring his trade to a proper appreciation of the good by comparison with the bad. The lady who goes into a drygoods establishment is not content with being shown one piece of cloth only; she must have a variety from which to make a selection. The same is true in the book business. Purchasers are not content with seeing only one edition of a book that appears in a half dozen, and the bookseller who would control this trade must listen to their demands and grade his stock accordingly. Another cause of much of the trouble now burdening the book trade is due to the booksellers themselves. It is not the "butcher" and the "bazaar" alone who demoralize the prices of books. The practice of discounting has become so general that people even look for it. Even English books, that should yield a better profit, suffer the same fate at the hands of the bookseller. What more narrow-minded policy could booksellers pursue than by attempting to undersell one another on legitimate publications? The practice tends only to bring distrust upon the trade generally.

The publishers, while not being the cause, can be the means of preventing to a great extent these evil practices. A union of booksellers who will agree to uphold publishers' prices is a plan desirable, but not possible; but a union of publishers who will sell only to booksellers adhering to their prices is a plan at once expedient and practicable. Let six of the leading publishers in the East organize such a union, and see with what grace publishers all along the line will follow in their wake. Such a plan must necessarily meet with opposition on the part of both publisher and bookseller; but organized with the proper care, we believe we are safe in saying that every publisher or bookseller of note throughout the country would lend all his energy in furthering its interests. In conclusion, it does not admit of any doubt that the book business has changed, is still changing, and will continue to change, until both publisher and bookseller work as one person in establishing the needed reforms, thereby at once restoring confidence throughout the trade and limiting at the same time the career of the "butcher" and "bazaar."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

W. A. CROFFUT is preparing an illustrated history of the Vanderbilt family, to be ready in May.

MISS A. MARY F. ROBINSON'S new volume of poems, "An Italian Garden," will be ready in March.

ALFRED AVRES, author of the "Ortheopist," etc., has in preparation a handy and practical little treatise on "The Essentials of Elocution."

MATHILDE BLIND is preparing a volume for the Famous Women series on Madame Roland. It is partly founded on letters by Madame Roland not hitherto published in English, consisting of her correspondence with the Demoiselles Cannel before her marriage, of her copious correspondence with Bancal des Issarts, and of the four letters which, addressed by her from prison to the Girondin Buzot, were first published by M. C. A. Dauban in 1864.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

"BIBLIOGRAPHY OF CEYLON.—A carefully-compiled bibliography of writers on Ceylon, prepared by Messrs. D. W. and W. Ferguson, will be published in the forthcoming edition of "Ferguson's Ceylon Handbook."

WAR LITERATURE.—James Beale, 719 Sansom Street, Philadelphia, calls attention to a "Bibliographical List of War Literature—especially regimental histories, and sketches of brigades, divisions, and corps," prepared by Mr. G. M. Abbot, of the Philadelphia Library Company. The edition is limited to one hundred copies. (Price, 35 cents.)—James Anglim & Co., Washington, D. C., has issued the first part of a "General Catalogue of Books and Pamphlets on the Civil War, Including Some Confederate Publications, and Embracing the Slavery Question and the Reconstruction Period." The catalogue is arranged alphabetically, under authors or catchword, and has a brief index of subjects. (22 p. sq. 8°.)

BARNICOTT & SON, Taunton, England, has issued another of his admirable catalogues. As usual, it is prefixed by a list of new books just published or forthcoming. Then follows a very full list comprising a selection of works in the various departments of literature. An index is added (108 p. 16°).

THE catalogue of the maps in the British Museum, compiled and printed for the first time under the superintendence of Professor Douglas, is spoken of by the London Publishers' Circular as "a colossal work. It is contained in two large volumes of over two thousand pages, and has more than ninety thousand entries, including, of course, cross-references. It includes not only a vast collection of maps produced in Europe, but also a considerable number of Indian, Chinese, and Japanese maps; and it abounds with priceless treasures."

CATALOGUES OF SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—Rufus C. Hartranft, 709 Sansom Street, Philadelphia: a clearance catalogue which includes principally history, biography, and Americana, (24 p. 8°).—George D. Morse, Haverhill, Mass.: Handlist (No. 72) of second-hand school books.—R. H. Sutton, Manchester, Eng.: No. 26, being Part 2 of his "General Catalogue." Comprises list of works on Australia, Bewick, Byron, Ballads, and Birds. (20 p. 12°.)

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Bookmart for January appends to an article on bookbinding a small list of books on the subject, which may be consulted with advantage by those who may desire to "read up."

THE Novellen Schatz, published by S. Zickel, N. Y., has entered its twenty-seventh year. It brings every other week a selection of the best recent fiction—serial and short stories—a page or so of more substantial reading matter, and the same quantity of poetry, facetiæ, games, puzzles, etc., making it altogether a most attractive family magazine. It is a large quarto, printed in large type on good paper.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BELTON, TEX.—J. W. Lee & Co., booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

BOSTON, MASS.—It is announced that Cleaves, Macdonald & Co. have purchased Lockwood, Brooks & Co.'s stock, etc., and in spring will take the store on Tremont St. now occupied by R. H. Stearns & Co.

BOSTON, MASS.—S. E. Cassino has taken an office at 65 Kingston St., and will have his announcements ready shortly.

MANISTEE, MICH.—W. W. Douville, of the firm of Douville Brothers, booksellers and stationers, is dead.

NEW YORK CITY.—Henry Miller, bookseller and importer, has removed to 79 Nassau Street, between John and Fulton streets, directly opposite his old stand, where he hopes not only to see all his old customers, but also those who recently favored him with their patronage in the Fourteenth Street store.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—Not a little surprise was occasioned among the trade by the intelligence that the St. Louis Stationery & Book Company had confessed judgment in favor of its President, Hugh R. Hildreth, for $45,000, upon which judgment the sheriff took possession of the company's property on December 19. The liabilities of the concern are $235,000, and the nominal assets are estimated at $295,000. The Stationers' Board of Trade has agreed to accept a settlement of the affairs of the company upon a basis of eighty per cent, twenty per cent to be paid in cash and the remainder in six notes of ten per cent each, drawn at three, six, nine, twelve, fifteen, and eighteen months, indorsed by Hugh R. Hildreth. The creditors have already agreed to a settlement on this basis, and it is probable that the business will be continued as before.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. A. J. HOLDEN, of Thos. Whittaker, sails for Europe on the Aurania to-day.

MR. E. C. SWAYNE, of the firm of E. P. Dutton & Co., sailed for Europe on the Gallia January 9th, to be gone three months on business for his firm.

MR. C. J. MILLS, who represents Messrs. Longmans & Co. in this country, has just returned from London. He will start next week for Australia via San Francisco, on an extended business trip. During his absence the forthcoming publications of Messrs. Longmans will be offered to the trade in this country by Mr. Dewitt C. Lent.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

R. W. GILDER'S "Lyrics and Other Poems," will shortly be republished in London.

L. M. MCKENNEY & Co., 606 Montgomery Street, San Francisco, Cal., have nearly ready a new edition of their "Pacific Coast Directory."

"CÉSAR BIROTTEAU" is the next novel of Balzac to be brought out in translation by Roberts Brothers. It will appear about the 1st of February.

D. LOTHROP & Co. will publish in this country Professor A. S. Church's forthcoming story for boys, entitled "Two Thousand Years Ago: the Adventures of a Roman Boy."

TICKNOR & Co. will publish shortly a novel by Isaac Henderson, son of the former publisher of the Evening Post, to be entitled "The Prelate." The scene is laid in Rome, and the characters are mostly Catholics.

THOSE persons who "extra-illustrate" books will be glad to know that Houghton, Mifflin & Co. have printed a number of steel portraits of the authors on their list, which they sell apart from the books. The latest addition to this collection is a portrait of Mr. Lowell.

THE book trade are warned to look out for a man who walks into a book store carrying what looks like a paper bundle, but it is a wooden box made to fit a Webster's Unabridged. He watches his chance, puts in the dictionary, and walks out as he came. This man tried it at Dutton's with two boxes on Thursday, got the dictionaries in, but escaped, leaving both boxes and dictionaries behind.

D. C. HEATH & Co., of Boston, have published "The Temperance Teachings of Science," by Professor A. B. Palmer, of the University of Michigan. It expresses no opinions as to the particular methods of what is called "Temperance Work." "The sole object has been to bring all, and especially young people, to the rational conclusion and firm resolve that in whatever form, as an article of 'diet,' of luxury, or as a beverage, alcohol is harmful, is useless."

CARSWELL & Co., Toronto, Canada, have just ready "Lewis's Law of Shipping," a treatise on the law relating to, or in any way connected with, the shipping and mercantile interests of the inland and sea-coast waters of Canada and the United States," by Edward Norman Lewis. This volume also contains the statutes appertaining down to and inclusive of 1885, and an article on "Inland Lloyds" and "Shipbuilding," by William W. Bates, naval architect and marine expert, Chicago, U. S. A.

LEE & SHEPARD will soon publish "Haphazard Personalities of Noted Americans," by Charles Lanman, author of "The Dictionary of Congress," etc.; Underwood's "Handbook of English History," based on Professor M. J. Guet's lectures on English history brought down to 1880; "Young People's England," by George Makepeace Towle, author of "Certain Men of Mark;" and "Hints on Languages," by Superintendent Bent, of the Clinton, Mass., schools.

S. E. CASSINO & Co. have just completed "The Standard Natural History." The work is issued in six handsome imperial octavo volumes, illustrated with 2200 fine wood-cuts and 178 full-page plates, made expressly for this work. The work is a thoroughly representative American work, written by American naturalists, in which careful attention is given to American forms, as well as to all foreign species. While the aim of the publishers has been to produce a popular account of the whole animal kingdom, scientific accuracy has not been lost sight of.

SYMPHER & Co. have closed their London branch at 326 Regent Street.

MACMILLAN & Co. announce that their new edition of the "Writings of John Morley" will be uniform with the pretty Eversley Edition of Kingsley issued a year or two since. The first volume, containing Voltaire, will appear at once.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS have in press a volume by Barnett Smith, entitled "The Prime Ministers of Queen Victoria." Sketches are given of Lord Melbourne, Sir Robert Peel, Earl Russell, Lord Derby, Lord Aberdeen, Lord Palmerston, Lord Beaconsfield, Mr. Gladstone, and Lord Salisbury.

WHITTAKER'S ALMANAC has just been issued in London. Unusual delay occurred in its preparation, caused by the necessity of including the new House of Commons. It contains the names of all candidates, their politics, and the numbers polled for each. Information also is given of the representation of the counties previous to 1832, and of the various changes effected by the reform bills of 1832, 1867, and 1885.

C. M. SEYFFEL has invented another of his clever satires on the signs of the times, and quite weighted it with the title: "Schmidt und Smith, Hottentotisches Blaubuch" (Hottentot Blue Book). The story tells of an Englishman and a German taken prisoners by the Hottentots, and allowed to plead for their lives prior to being eaten. Smith dwells upon the advantages of being annexed to Great Britain, and is derided for being ruled by a woman. Schmidt promises the protection of Bismarck, gains the submission of the savages, and ties the German flag to a palm-tree. A few years ago such a book would have been without point.

OBITUARY NOTES.

JOHN TERHUNE.—"Squire" John Terhune died at his residence at New Brunswick, N. J., on the 8th inst. Mr. Terhune was born in 1795, began business as a printer and publisher in 1812, and for many years published the famous Webster's Elementary Spelling-book which was so universally used a quarter of a century ago.

REMARKABLE BOOK RENOVATION.—A Frenchman named Lahontan has just accomplished a remarkable feat in book renovation. He had sent him from London a copy of Coverdale's Bible that was completely saturated with fat, having been used by a marketman as a "rest" for his butter-tubs, and badly eaten by mice. His process was to treat each leaf to a judicious course of chlorine in solution and ammonia, while the dirt was removed by some process only known to himself. He then supplied the defective portions by carefully grafting on selected pieces of paper of the requisite texture and shade. The missing letter-press was fac-similed. The whole was then sized and afterward appropriately bound by one of the best Parisian binders, the whole cost of this treatment being $200.
